New publication

This book challenges narratives of one-directional cultural flows from Europe to the Americas. The essays' varied topics and methods map a richly innovative Spanish-American imaginary emerging through multidirectional transatlantic and Pan-American axes of influence in Modernist to contemporary poetry and art. Migration, friendship, and little magazines open new horizons to renegotiate colonial hierarchies. Intercultural dialogue renders languages and literary/artistic traditions novel sounding boards, inspiring Chicano and Latinx consciousness, reinventions of gender and sexuality, and formal and linguistic experimentation. The diverse sites of intercultural dialogue include García Lorca's poetry, the Spanish Civil War, avant-garde circles, and intercultural and literary translation.

ANNE DAY DEWEY is Associate Professor of English at Saint Louis University's Madrid Campus, where she also coordinates the Women's and Gender Studies program. Her research focuses on poetry, gender, and ethnicity in post-1945 US literature.

CRISTINA M. GÁMEZ-FERNÁNDEZ is Senior Lecturer at the Department of English and German of the University of Córdoba, Spain. Her research interests include Postcolonial Literature and Cultural Studies, in particular, issues of vulnerability and precarity.

JOSÉ RODRÍGUEZ HERRERA is Senior Lecturer of English at the University of Las Palmas de Gran Canaria (ULPGC), where he also coordinates the Film and Literature Master's degree. His main areas of research focus on poetry, film adaptations, and translation studies.
